Repaving – Court/Angle Streets Junction

Hamilton – 12 September 2018

The City of Hamilton advises that repaving at the junction of Court and Angle Streets will begin at 6:00am on Thursday, September 13th. The junction will be closed until work is completed, estimated to be by 4pm on Friday, September 14th. The junction closure will affect traffic flow in that area. Traffic traveling southbound on Court Street from Till's Hill will be redirected right onto Ewing Street; traffic traveling northbound on Court Street will be diverted left onto Elliott Street and Angle Street traffic will be redirected to Princess Street.

The City apologizes to the residents and businesses in the area for the late notice but a cancellation in the schedule of the asphaltting company gave the City an opportunity to get the work done in a timely fashion before more deterioration of the roadway could continue.

Senior Engineer, Ian Hind, says of the repaving, "The City will be hand delivering the traffic notice to as many residents and businesses in the direct area that may be affected by the repaving. We realize that the short notice is not ideal but we had to jump on the chance to get the work done so that the improvements could be done as soon as possible. By Friday afternoon, a newly paved road surface will be a benefit to all.

The City apologizes for any inconvenience caused throughout the duration of the repaving and thanks the public for its continued patience. The necessary barriers and signage will be in place to assist motorists with the diversions.
